LECKEY®

Posture & Function

Research has shown that standing can improve bone density, motor abilities and reduce spasticity, tone and spasms.

Pelvic Stability

Pelvic stability is as important in standing as in sitting, because the trunk, head, and legs have to be in alignment in order for standing to be comfortable and therapeutically effective

Trunk and Head Alignment

As in sitting, trunk and head support contributes to the stability of the pelvis in standing, enhancing arm and hand function, concentration and social interaction.

Leg and Foot Positioning

Active weight bearing contributes to the development of the hip joint. It is essential that legs and feet are appropriately positioned to achieve maximum therapeutic benefit.

Function

The Squiggles Stander is designed to promote independence and function.
